

BAR & PARTY SUPPLIES

Sun-Dried Aardvark-Tongue Swizzle-Sticks (Tasty!)

Somehow a cocktail always tastes better when it has a little umbrella, a garnish or a swizzle-stick.

At our patio bar, nothing beats a genuine Sun-Dried Aardvark-Tongue Swizzle-Stick.

These handy little items are torn directly from the mouths of living wild aardvarks. Once the aardvarks have been released back into the wild the tongues are stretched on Guanandi hardwood (Brazilian Cherry) racks and lain out in the sun to dry, so as to attain the maximum length possible. Just imagine your manservant handing you a cool drink containing a Sun-Dried Aardvark-Tongue Swizzle-Stick after a hard day of hunting from the back of a jeep.

- Individualize your drink:
- 1-Tongue & Snout
 - 2-Tongue & Ear
 - 3-Tongue & Eyeball
 - 4-Natural Tongue

UTILITY & CLEANING

Spotted-Owl Duster-Sticks

If you are as finicky about domestic hygiene as we are then you will be happy that you spied these handy Spotted-Owl Duster-Sticks. They are a home help rarity that makes household dust an endangered species.

Spotted Owls are majestic birds that hail from the forests of the U.S. Pacific Northwest. In areas that have nesting pairs, land-owners are sometimes forced to leave up to 70 acres of land untouched for their habitat. Interestingly, we have found that many ranchers are more than happy to let us discretely harvest the birds to help make way for more economic use of their under utilized forested land. Each duster stick is hand fashioned from an individual bird. By purchasing a Spotted-Owl Duster-Stick, you're helping keep our forest economy alive.

BATHROOM

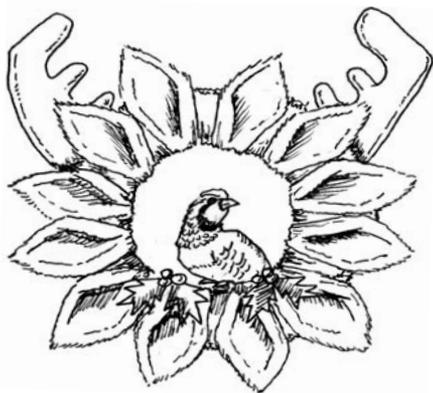

Patagonian-Hedge-Hog Soap-Holder

Swashbuckling days and old world charm come swirling back in the form of this beautiful Patagonian-Hedge-Hog Soap-Holder. It is believed that this item was first employed by Ferdinand Magellan in 1520. As the armada landed at Tierra del Fuego in Southern Argentina, Magellan complained that his soap kept sliding under his trunk during rough seas. To solve the problem, Magellan's First Officer nailed a Hedge-Hog to the counter above Magellan's wash basin and stuck the soap upon it. In our version neoprene suction cups attached to the hedge-hog's feet keep it from sliding or shifting in the bath.

12-Days-of-Christmas Reindeer-Ear-Wreath^{with} Mounted-Partridge-Centerpiece

Christmas may only come once a year, but it also comes every year. That's why we suggest investing in a 12-Days-of-Christmas Reindeer-Ear-Wreath with Mounted-Partridge-Centerpiece that will last for decades. If reindeer speak to the holiday spirit, the Reindeer-Ear portion of this wreath is like a megaphone of joy. Skillfully crafted and artfully arranged, the wreath is comprised of 12 individual ears each representing one of the 12 days of Christmas. When you peer beneath an ear you will find that there is a description of the day that it represents. At the center of the Reindeer-Ear-Wreath sits a majestic Mounted-Partridge-Centerpiece. The partridge gives the impression that she is comfortably nestled in her nest in the proverbial pear tree. All together it's a stunning piece of ornamentation that forms a lasting holiday impression.
